Due to the horrible complications last project I made a big effort to get some usable code out very early this project. Natsha's coding was vastly easier for me to understand and removed my fear of working with a teammate. This project went smoothly and working together we had the majority of the code finished within just a few short days. I feel that we both made considerable effort and worked well together. I would say that we planned from the beginning and succeeded in each doing 50% of the work. Natasha has great attention to detail in picking up small mistakes I had missed and cleaning up bad areas that assisted us with memory loss, miscalculations, and a variety of other issues which slipped under my nose. I felt I did a good job in organizing and laying out the function pointers and was extremely grateful when Natasha was able to understand and successfully go with the flow and immediately begin building off the pre-existing code. Between the two of us we constantly worked the second week to clean up and optimize our functions with no confusion and good clarity. I feel our code is fairly solid at this point and although we are just beging to understand C++ and data structures I am proud of the results. Once again I would say we both equally shared the effort in this project and more importantly worked well as a team.
